Florence Nightingale (1820-1910) Florence Nightingale is one of the most influential people in modern nursing. During the Crimean War in the 1850s, she organized care for wounded soldiers, which earned her the persona “The Lady with the Lamp”. In 1860, she established the first secular nursing school in the world, which was connected to St Thomas’ Hospital in London. After that, the nurse dedicated her whole life to spreading medical knowledge and advocating for female workers. In honor of her work, International Nurses Day is celebrated on her birthday.
